Fabio Novembre is a renowned architect and designer with a unique design flair. Novembre's notoriously eccentric personality is reflected in his works, which are inspired by baroque and are designed 'for pleasure and beauty.'

Novembre's architectural career first took off whilst reading Film Studies in New York, a qualification he had to abandon in favour of his new vocation. The idea that he could turn his forsaken cinematic ideas into architectural concepts has influenced his vision ever since, resulting in a rejection of traditionally accepted styles and an effort to further develop his unique aesthetic with each assignment.

This title showcases Novembre's oeuvre within a beautiful Italian-made book that is an object of design in itself.

Fabio Novembre is an incredibly successful architect and designer, featured on a regular basis in many architecture and design magazines. He worked as Creative Director of successful mosaic tile manufacturer Bisazza, making it a world leader during his time there.
